Stretched-Fabric Wall Panels & Systems

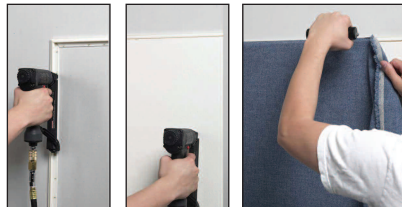

If you've never taken a close look at stretched-fabric wall paneling systems, now is the time. Fabricmate Systems site-fabricated products and our Interactive Panel System (IPS) pre-assembled panels address many of the functional, design, and budget requirements of an increasingly demanding customer.

WHY FABRICMATE?

Unlike pre-wrapped panels which are edge treated to develop modest durability and which have their coverings permanently glued to the substrate, the Fabricmate System incorporates a track system which frames the panels in high-impact plastic, rendering their edges virtually crush proof. Another advantage of our track is that it permits the selected covering to be easily inserted into tight fitting jaws which hold the fabric taut, allowing the fabric to float above the surface of the panel. This eliminates almost all the visible surface damage that invariably occurs in pre-wrapped panels. Moreover the fabric can be changed should it become damaged, soiled, or if a change in fabric texture, color, or design is desired.

OPPORTUNITIES ABOUND

The amazing versatility of the Fabricmate System is due to its ability to conform to most wall surfaces, easily incorporate different materials and designs, its ease of installation, durability, and changeability. Whether new construction, tenant improvements, or simple remodeling, stretched-fabric wall products from Fabricmate Systems can be the ideal solution. Contractors are routinely installing these systems in a multitude of commercial and residential applications including businesses, schools, hotels, churches, homes, and many more.

IT'S EASY!

Your company can get started right away. There are no licensing fees or up-front costs. Employees can be quickly trained. With the site-fabricated system, there is no need to worry about standard panel sizes, materials, or colors. Also there is no need to perform field measurements or deal with long lead times for expensive, custom sized products. Fabricmate products are immediately available and most are shipped same day. This makes change orders, and budgets easy to accommodate. Complete project estimating and real person technical support is provided. Add Fabricmate Systems products to the list of ways in which you can expand your services, add new sources of revenue, and most importantly, satisfy your customers.
